

Call for Papers

Institute for Continuous Quality Improvement

New and Proven Approaches to Continuous Quality Improvement

Sponsored by ASQ's Quality Management and Statistics Divisions

Held jointly with the 2010 World Conference on Quality and Improvement

We invite you to submit proposals for presentations and workshops at this institute. The purpose of this institute is to engage managers, practitioners, analysts and researchers in a dialogue that produces more effective approaches and processes to improve quality. Topics for improving quality will include:

- Basic quality skills
- Management principles
- Strategies and processes for improving quality
- Data-driven decision making
- Statistical methods

Papers, presentations, and workshops will target participants at the Introductory, Intermediate and Advanced levels. Presentations will feature new approaches and case-studies that illustrate effective principles. The workshops will be learning opportunities that involve active personal involvement. We are targeting eight 45 minute presentations and eight two-hour workshops.

Prepare your proposal using the following format:

- Title of presentation
- List the authors including their names, affiliation, telephone number, mailing address and email address
- Name of presenter(s)
- Key words or phrases
- Presentation description (maximum of 150 words)
- List presenter biographies (maximum of 200 words each)
- Abstract (maximum of 3000 words)
- Session preference, i.e., presentation or workshop
- Target audience, i.e., introductory, intermediate or advanced

Submit your proposal by September 15, 2009